AcademyWomen Hosts 1st Spring Leadership Summit in San Diego

San Diego, California – April 17, 2010

AcademyWomen will host its first leadership summit at the Admiral Baker Club in San Diego, California on April 17, 2010. This year's event has the theme "Yesterday and Today's Military Women and the Many Facets of this Precious Gem" and will honor and give voice to the current contributions of prominent women who currently serve or have served in the military. Program details to follow.

Up to one hundred participants, mostly current and former women military officers, cadets, and midshipmen representing every branch of the service, will travel from around the country to attend this one day event. Representing a new paradigm in leadership development for women, this event is one of few opportunities for women in the military and non-traditional career fields to come together and share their unique experiences on the battlefield, in the boardroom, and at home.

Saturday will include inspirational and informative panels and keynote speakers on a wide range of topics to include "Patriotism," "Work-Life Balance: Successful strategies for working women," "Women & Leadership: A delicate balance," "If I knew then what I know now," and "Health & Fitness." The event is open to all current and former women military officers and supporters of AcademyWomen. Registration and event information can be found online at www.academywomen.org.
